Chapter 1 by YOLOSWAG

Firemen

Splash! The icy, freezing water fall on me like waterfall. "Get up Jeff!" my mom roared. I tried to adjust my eyes for the darkness but the loud fire alarm sound like thunder. I got up feeling my black hairs wet, grabbed my pants then put it on, snatched my weighty backpack because there's an important test today and I don't want to miss it or be late.

My mom and I slogged down stairs with our tiredness to the large basement where all the people were. Meanwhile I heard firemen busted into the rooms and to see if anyone's hurt. The test ends at 8:30A.M. and now it's 10 past 7:00A.M, I got a bit frustrated of the fire so I start to try sneak out. I went up to a serious fireman and I murmured to him: " I need to go the lavatory, it's emergency!"

The fireman let me out of the basement then I began my plan. The plan that all I can think of is go to the exit while the fireman who is guarding the exit go to the washroom. So I waited and waited, my throat is getting dried up and I'm getting so starving that I can eat an elephant, at last I can't hold anymore, the hunger of my stomach feels like a empty haunted house waiting for people to go in. So I went to the vending machine and my hand grasp some coins from my blue jeans pocket and slowly pop them in.

The skirmish sides track a familiar theme from the first Star Wars film, the one about the good and the bad, the wandering toward the saving. See more of Story Wars the door, it snap open, I peer in spot nothing but the stairs, I made my first step into the stairs. Suddenly without warning, someone took grip of me and full nelson me back to the basement, I tried to escape but I felt a huge hard rock that's trying to squeeze you in to a paddle of water. He's face turned red, smoke came out of his ears like fire burning in his body. When we scrambled all the way to the basement, he hurl me like a bouncy ball to the ground which hurts a lot. I looked at my watch, 8:10A.M. well, I guess this is it, I can't slip away, I can't get through firemen. The grade F is looking forward to me then. Before I can think any more, the alarm suddenly stops and I can see the chief of the firemen with microphone standing in front of the crowd. He began: "Thank you for your patience, the fire is now officially over, you are allowed to return to your rooms and the entrances are open... before he can finished, I hurried pass the chief and aimed for the door. I rammed into the door which was already open, I kept running to the school on the side walk, I take a peek of my watch 8:25A.M. When I reached the school's courtyard, the time is 8:29A.M. I hurry down the schools corridor as fast as a rocket ship going on it's top speed in the open space, I reach my class and suddenly the test bell rang. The teacher walked toward me with a surprise: "can't believe you still came even you know it's too late" and hand me a blank sheet of paper with a large egg shaped picture on it. "Firemen" I murmured with a creepy smile and walk back to the apartment.
